READY FOR LAW-MAKING.

THE NEW-JERSEY LEGISLATURE ORGANIZED AND ITS OFFICERS ELECTED.

SENATOR McPHERSON IN TRENTON—REPORT OF

THE MORRIS PLAINS ASYLUM COMMITTEE.

GOVERNOR GREEN'S MESSAGE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 8.—The Legislature was organized this afternoon in peace. The reorganization of 1888, when, also, the House was Democratic, had led to the belief that there would be another stormy session, and the attitude of Assemblyman McDermitt, who had threatened to bolt the caucus, heightened anxiety. Mr. McDermitt, however, cooled as mildly as a smoking dove when the time came for a demonstration, and all was serene thereafter.

Senator McPherston arrived in person at noon, but found that he was not needed, his lieutenants having arranged every detail. The atmosphere of the town was charged with the enthusiasm of the day, and the senators' reception without difficulty was predicted. This is by no means conceded, and as soon as the satisfaction of the Democrats with their success in connecting affairs recently has subsided, there will be less assurance shown.

The House of Assembly went through the program of organization quietly, with two exceptions.

The first of these was caused by the clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Haynes, of the Methodist church, who delivered the opening prayer. The prayer was of a positive sensation, when Mr. Haynes prayed that the members would listen to the cry that is going up from the homes all over the land for the abolition of the terrible curse of the liquor traffic, which is yearly sending 100,000 souls to perdition.

When the minister had concluded his prayer there was a general stir toward the speaker, and the Speaker, Mr. Woodruff, who had been seated in the Democratic friends who were alluding to their trade with post-mortem. It was, however, broadly indicated that Mr. Haynes would not be asked to pray for a Democratic House of Assembly again.

The second incident of the afternoon was Mr.

McDermitt's revenge. When Mr. McDermitt, of Hudson, was nominated for Speaker, Mr. McDermitt seconded the nomination, and proceeded to explain that he had been a candidate, but had been basely deserted by three of his Essex County colleagues, and hence had withdrawn. "The perjury and treachery of these men will be rewarded when they come again before the people," said Mr. McDermitt. E. S. Hudson, who was elected Speaker, the Republicans voting for Jonathan Goble, of Ocean, the author of the local opium law, John J. Matthews, of Union, was elected
